The Pastor's Corner

This week we continue in our Changing Soil series to move from the safety of private prayer to the scary arena of conversational evangelism. Many Christians today are absolutely petrified when it comes to sharing our faith; but, according to Jesus in the Great Commission, it is what we are here for—to make disciples! We actually do this stuff all the time. We try and make Cardinal fans out of Cub fans, or Chiefs fans out of Rams fans, Chevy fans out of Ford fans, you get my drift. It is not difficult for us to talk about things we are deeply passionate about. When we find talking about Jesus hard to do, it says something about the weediness of our field. I hope you can make it this Sunday as we consider moving from “secret saints” to conversational Christians. See you Sunday.

A Note from the Music Minister

Beginning on Wednesday, August 20, we will begin our Wednesday night meals. We have started the sign-up process for these meals. By offering these meals, we are hoping to take away the stress of “What are we going to eat before we go to Discipleship Group?” The cost is $5 per person with a $20 maximum for a family. Meals will end Wednesday, December 17.

When you sign up for the meals you will be on the list for the whole semester. If there is a time when you are not going to be able to make it, please contact the office and let us know by Monday the week of. If you need to add people for a week, again call the office by Monday the week of. This will help us be good stewards and only prepare food for the number who are going to be in attendance.

These will run congruent with our Discipleship Pathway schedule. If there is no Discipleship Pathway groups meeting, then there will not be a Wednesday night meal. We are also signing up volunteers (about 40 people) to help prepare these meals. This would let us have eight teams of five people each. With eight teams, each team would only have to help twice a semester. I have been working on putting together eight different menus. Each team would be assigned to one of the menus. Each time a team helped, it would be the same menu. This allows each team to know exactly what they will be doing each time they help. As an example, Week 1 is spaghetti. Team 1 will work on this meal and when we get to Week 9, then Team 1 will be back preparing spaghetti. Please understand that I am not looking for trained chefs. I am looking for those who know their way around a kitchen and are great at taking directions. As Pat Allison put it the other day, “You are looking for sous chefs.” She is exactly right. If the Lord is prompting you to participate in this ministry, please sign up immediately. If you are excited and think that you would like to help on multiple weeks, that is great, again just let me know.

Zack
