The Pastor's Corner

If you have already read my other article in the center column, then you know that I only have two Sundays left to preach before my knee replacement surgery. Given that one of those weeks is Father's Day, I have selected a two-part sermon titled Almost to All In. A great many of us today have trouble focusing on the truly important things in this world. We are quite literally double-minded as the Bible says or perhaps even worse than double. I have just returned from my high school 50th class reunion. A part of that very enjoyable event was a slide show memorial of our classmates who have died. It was very sobering to many watching, including the wife of one of our classmates who did not even attend our high school! She went to the microphone spontaneously and wept as she lamented over the slide show. She did not know a single one of them. As our life on this earth grows shorter it generally enlarges our vision of what is and is not important. That is what I will be attempting to highlight in this series. I hope to see you on Sunday.

Pastor James

A Word from the Pastor

Most of you have noticed my hobbling around over the past few months or perhaps you have overheard my whining. My left knee has been bone on bone for the past five years and has recently become so painful that I have relented and scheduled knee replacement. There is no good time in our church calendar to do this, so I just went with whenever they could get me in. They tell me my recovery will take four to six weeks. I am counting on four. It is summer and our staff is very busy, and I do not want to increase their workload, so I have enlisted two fine men to fill our pulpit while I am out. Some of you remember Dr. John Marshall who was the pastor of Second Baptist Church in Springfield for many years. I couldn't get him, but I did recruit his grandson Ian Williams at Dr. Marshall's suggestion. I have spoken with Ian, and he impresses me as an outstanding young man. Dr. Marshall says he is a great preacher. He will be covering three of the four weeks I am out. On July 5th weekend we will have our new Director of Missions Alan Lane with us, and I am very excited to hear from him. I am sure you will be blessed by him as well. That Sunday will be our deacon led church-wide picnic event celebrating our nation's 250th birthday! It will have a block party kind of feel with free hotdogs, chips, drinks, our local ice cream food truck will be here and you will get a free scoop of ice cream. There will be frisbees for the kids, inflatables, popcorn, or funnel cakes (I'm not sure which at this point) and door prizes for all ages! Lots of fun for everyone. Invite your neighbors and friends to join us on the 5th of July for an evening of fun and celebration of this blessed country that we are privileged to live in!

Now for the pastoral plea, please DO NOT slack in your attendance. Be faithful every week and give both godly men a chance to speak a word from God that we all need to hear! Plus, as soon as I am able, I will be here too. I covet your prayers for swift healing, and I look forward to returning to you all better. Thanks for being the great church of folks that I love so much.

James
